THE FRENCH TREATY WITH KOREA.

A Soul correspondent of the N. C. Dully Nows sends a long account of the negotiation of the French treaty with Korea. The Christianity relief clause was struck out; but certain suggestions were proffered relative to the proposed treaty which, without explicitly conceding, by a special clause, the liberty of preaching Chrisiauity in Korea, would by modifications of clauses in former treaties, on which the general tenor of the French treaty was to be based, implicitly afford means that are supposed will substantially satisfy the claim of Christianity for freedom. Thus, in article IX, of the British treaty it is provided that subjects of either actionality probabiling to the country of the Chinese territory, in this manner; there is no other shall be afforded every reasonable facility doubt much to be said for it. But what pretence for studying it's language, literature, laws, His Worship thought they might now adjourn is there for taxing for the benefit of the Im- ste, etc., and for the purpose of scientific research: This, by the French treaty, is modified by a similar facility being given to French persons to teach all these subjects, which by a favourable construction may in-It is argued that, after all, the opium, wherever clude the Catholic moral and religious teac :ing. However, it is no business that freedom of travelling in the interior was decarred for any other purpose has been modified in the French treaty, to the effect that French subjects can freely obtain passports to travel in myself with repeating that such a scheme has the interior of Korea without declaring that they lo so for pleasure or purposes of tride, and this implicitly permits them to younge through the country for other purposes, including teaching. As, moreover, by the same Article travellers in Korea if arrested for any supposed offence, shall be handed over to the nearest Consul for punishment. French teachers will henceforth be no longer exposed, if impeded in their travels, to be maltreated by the Korean officials, but will be judged by the authorities of their own country, and thus by the force of the treaty all persecution of Catholic Missionaries is rendered impossible in the future, through their being thus withdrawn from the territorial jurisdiction. Apparently these are small concessions; but they were deemed sufficient to meet the emergency, and they evince on the part of the Korean Sovereign a gracious disposition which met with corresponding appreciation by the French Minister, as providing a stepping stone to something more propitious in the future, and Sheweth,-That your memorialists view with solving the difficulties that threatened the and taste; his Hungarian dance was a rare treat, disturbance in the street to the westward, ac- just alarm the ratification of the Chefoo Conven- failure of the French diplomatic mission and theair being joyous and pretty, and the variations companied by the sound of doors slamming to, ition of 1876 and the early enforcement of the the creation of unsatisfactory relations between

To-day General Lay and Tso have arrived from by the Tso-tai with a large number of soldiers, and an inspection of the different forts is talked of. Meanwhile quantities of guns and ammunition continue to arrive, the Kungpai having Perak Tin Mining and Smelting Company just discharged her ordnance. It is strange that, although big sums have been paid for guns, etc., and we hear continually about the magnificent, way the Chinese are being armed, nearly all the infantry one sees about here are burdened with old obsolete muskets, some may be termed ham-merless, but very few are breech-loaders. Business is rather quiet, shippers complain of having lost thus far, and are not eager to employ steamers; prices, however, keep up pretty well. Farmers ask for rain, the country being dry .- N. C. The Siècle of Paris says under date of April 23rd:-- "The American Press is devoting its whole attention at this moment to the rapid multiplication of the French population in Canada. The Anglo-Canadian newspapers, the Mail among others, give us curious information on the influence and progress of our race in this country, which once was ours. It states, with astonishment, that one Franco-Canadian grandmother, who died at the age of ninety-one, left behind her 519 children and children's children; and it writes:-"With such grandmothers, we English can scarcely escape being drowned some Haiphong ... day in the rising flood of a population of French.

The London correspondent of the Western Muil writes:—Observers familiar with the House of Commons for a great many years are a good deal scandalized at the recent adoption of an STATION. American freedom of manners by some of the most distinguished members. It is all very well for Mr. Gladstone, at his time of life, to refresh himself from time to time with a mouthful of egg-flip, but the custom which now seems to have come into fashion with some much younger orators on the Front Opposition Bench of having a brandy-and-soda on the table to sip from while they are speaking is decidedly to be reprobated. Even in the old hard-drinking days Mr. Pitt used to go behind the Speaker's chair to drink his tumbler of port wine before address. ing the House. Another objectionable and even disgusting habit introduced by some occupants of the Front Opposition Bench is that of reclining back in their seats and planting their feet on the historic table of the House of Commons Spittoons will probably be the next innovation.

EXTRACT.

DEPARTED GREATNESS: Pengelly House, near the church, occupies the site of the residence of Richard Cromwell, the deposed Protector, who, after his return from the Continent shout the year 1680, assumed the name of Clarke, in order to secure himself from the intrusions of his father's friends, and lived here in retirement as a private gentleman during the remainderof his life. Here also he died, in July, 1712, in the arms of the gardener of Baron Pengelly. To all except his nearest friends Richard Cromwell always avoided speaking of his former greatness. Dr. Watts, who was one of his most frequent visitors, used to say that he never heard Richard allude to his former station except now and then in a very distant manner. He was buried at Hursley, in Humpshire, the manor of Hursley having descended to him in right of his wife,

though he was obliged to contest the possession of it with his daughters in a court of law. Serjeant Pengelly, who was retained by him on this occasion as counsel, and was afterwards Chief Baron of the Exchequer, is supposed to have been a natural son of his employer, a supposition which Mr. Noble, in his work above quoted, admits to be rendered probable by Richard's gallantry. Richard Cromwell appeared personally in the court at Westminster to contest the action against his daughters; and when he appeared in Westminster Hall, the judge, Sir John Holt, Lord Chief Justice of England, struck with the sad reverse of fortune and the unfeeling behaviour of his daughters, and on account of his old age, conducted him into a private apartment; refreshments were provided for him, and it was ordered that he should be accommodated with a seat in court. The old man gained the cause, and had the painful satisfaction of hearing his daughters severely censured. Queen Anne had the good feeling to applaud the judge for the attention he had shown to one who had once held sovereign power. As Richard was leaving Westminster Hall his curiosity led him to the House of Lords. He was asked when he was there last? "Nover," he said, point

In all things fashionable in personal apparel France is the authority par excellence and with regard to engagement rings, which are said to be mostly required at this seaso of the year, and of the oracles delivers itself thus: "The first of the presents which mus be made to an affirmed bride ought to b the engagement ring; this ring must for eve be kept by the woman; it is the first open. allowed gage of love; it should be of perfec taste and at the same time not inconvenier to the wearer (which remark, considering the the custom of mariage de convenance is sti very much adhered to in France, has a sligh ly sarcistic tone). I would not choose the ruby; it is too showy, loud, and indiscreet my taste inclines towards the supplier an the diamond, of which the one does not a well without the other. I should not choo a large supphire surrounded by diamonds; should ask our jeweller-artists to interlace happy combination the supplies and the di monds; the turquoise is also a tasteful ston but when it is constantly worn it has the immense disadvantage to change its colou and to this change most women attach a sand sentimental superstition. It should therefore, not be chosen for the first preser which is worn and cherished while life last and which remains from the days of you

Another subject which the merry month May suggests to the same writer is t presenting of flowers by a man to his intend wife. The orthodox basket of flowers cor posed by the florist is known to all the wor "If the fiance is a man of any tasto he w always vary his flowers according to the co versation he has had with his lady on t previous day. He will know how to ma delicate allusions in the flowers he sende, have not the flowers their language? I stalks of the flowers he will encircle one of by a porte-bonheur, another day by a couof those pretty snakes (alas!) which so grafully coil round the arm, and again, he w throw some diamonds into the calvx of roses favoured by the lady. I recomme above all not to be monotonous in ye choice of flowers. Show that you have occupied yourself with their choice, and that to conform to custom is not the reason for your present of flowers."

THE PAPER THAT A FISHMONGER USED FOR WRAPPING HIS WARES.

On a day in the year 1840 there calls at a SURANCES at Current Rates. fishmonger's shop in Old Hungerford market. himself from Yarmouth, no fishmonger, but a connoisseur and collector of autographs, with, moreover a sick son, for whom he desired to buy soles. He buys his soles, and they are wrapped for him in a large stiff sheet of paper torn from a folio volume that stands at Jay's elbow on the dresser, and paper, his well-trained eye catches the signs. | rates. tures of Godolphin, Sunderland, Ashley, Lauderdale. The wrapping of the soles is a sheet of the victualing charges for prisoners in the tower, in the reign of James IL, and the signatures are those of his Ministers. Any other man must have given some sign, GRANTPOLICIES of INSURANCE against have gone off to tell somebody; not so the FIRE at the following Rates:connisseur, but he takes his hat and stick. "Five pence," returns Jay; "they advertised ten tons of waste paper, and I offered £7 a ton, which they took, d'ye see? And I've got three ton of in the stables and the other seven they keep. till I want it." "All like this?" saks the FITHE Undersigned, Acents for the above connoisseur, faint with expectancy. . "Pretty much," replies Jav, "all odds and ends." The connoisseur goes home, with whiting, with cod, with mackerel, with skate, with parcels of every kind of fish for his poor, fanciful sick son, and moreover, with a great bundle of these precious papers from Somer-. set house, handed over to him carelessly by his fellow-townsman Jry, who knows his friend's little weakness for rubbish and fragments, and obligingly sends round to the stables for an armful for him. And, safe at home, the connoisseur casts the fish on the floor and uncreases the paper, and his head swims as he looks on arcounts of the exchequer office signed by Henry VII, and Henry VIII., wardrobe accounts of Queen Anne, and dividend receipts signed by Pope, Newton, Dryden and Wren. He is obliged to throw up the window for air, as in his armful he discovers secret service occounts marked with the E. G. of Nell Gwynne, a treatise on the eucharist in the boyish hand of Edward VI, and a disquisition on the Order of the Garter in the scholarly writing of Elizabeth. The Government, in disposing by tender of their

An Anglo-Chinese Dictionary, published at the Daily Press Office, Hongkong. For comprehensiveness and practical service this Work stands unrivalled. All the new words which the Chinese have of late years been compelled to coin to express the numerous objects in machinery, photography, telegraphy, and in science generally, which the rapid advance of foreign relations has imposed upon them, are here given in extense. Each and every word is fully illustrated and explained, forming exercises | Ningpo for students of a most instructive nature. Both the Court and Punti pronunciations are given the accents being earefully marked on the best principle hitherto attained. The typography displays the success of an attempt to make the Chinese and English type correspond in the size of body, thereby effecting a vast economy of space, achieving a clearness not previously attained, and dispensing with those vast margins. and vacant spaces which have heretofore characterized Chinese publications. . To the illustrate the vast scope of the work following facts are submitted for consideration:-Chalmers' Vocabulary contains about 16,000 Chinese characters, and Medhurst's English and Chinese Dictionary about 100,000, whilst this work contains more than 50,000 Englishwords, and upwards of 600,000 Chinese characters. Again, despite all the grammars and other elementary works as yet published, the NORTH BRITISH AND MERCANTILE student of this difficult language absolutely re- Francisca quires examples to display the various appli-THE Undersigned, Agents of the above Com- cations and equivalents of different words which pany, are authorized to INSURE against have one general meaning.
